

July/August 2009

Schools out, the weather is hot and it can be hard to stay motivated to get much done in the heat. Try doing one activity in each month to boost your cell phone collection.

You could ask the local retailers if you could set up a box in the store over the summer and phone the local papers to see if there is any free ad space where you could put in an announcement about the placement of the box. While people are on holidays over the summer and have more time they may drop by with old phones.

Have a great summer, relax and don't forget to be sun smart!
